PRACTICE AREAS

Business Litigation

Drew’s practice emphasizes general business litigation. His legal experience and academic background provide him with the skills to handle a wide range of business matters. In his more than two decades of practice, he has litigated a variety of business disputes, ranging from construction, negotiable instruments, insurance coverage, real property, employment, defamation, non-compete, foreclosures, to business dissolutions. Clients benefit from his energetic, innovative, and effective approach.

Construction & Lien Claims

Drew has extensive experience in representing owners, engineers, architects, contractors, suppliers regarding enforcement of liens in private construction projects, and handling claims on bonds/retainage in public jobs (both state and federal). Additionally, Drew secures insurance coverage on behalf of his clients. He has handled coverage disputes in areas such as: construction defects, intellectual property, employee dishonesty, work site accidents, and other business-related issues. He has recovered millions of dollars from insurers who initially denied coverage. Not only is indemnity crucial for the client, but the insurer’s contractual obligation to pay the client’s legal fees in defending claims of alleged liabilities is an integral part of securing coverage.
